Wetlands Consulting, Permitting and Ethics

Do you find yourself in situations where there is no clear answer? Do you have any interesting issues in permitting or delineation that you want to share and discuss? What is right? What is wrong? What is your ethical obligation? What is the NHDES ethical obligation? Let's Talk!!!!

Panelist Bios

Collis Adams is a Certified Wetlands Scientist with over thirty-five years of experience with a wide range of projects involving land development. Since 2001 he has served as the administrator of the Wetlands Bureau for NHDES. He has also worked in the private sector as a consulting engineer and with the New England Division of the Corps of Engineers. Collis has a degree in Environmental Engineering from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst and advanced studies in environmental engineering at the University of Wisconsin. He is the immediate past chairman and ex-officio member of the Board of Directors for the Association of State Wetland Managers. He has also served for more than 20 years on his local Conservation Commission helping to develop the Wetlands and Surface Water Conservation zoning district.

Raymond Lobdell is a Certified Wetland and Soil Scientist and Certified Professional in Erosion and Sediment Control. He has a BA in biology and an MS in soil and hydrology. Ray has experience as a soil scientist/ conservationist for NRCS, mitigation specialist for FEMA, environmental planner for two regional planning commissions, and environmental impact specialist with the Mitre Corporation in Washington, DC. For the past 30 years he has been a private consultant in New Hampshire.

Cindy Balcus is a Certified Wetland Scientist, Certified Soil Scientist and a Certified Professional in Erosion and Sediment Control. She holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Plant Biology from UNH with a minor in Soil Science followed by UNH graduate studies in Soil Science.
